Well here I am again, sending out the results of last October's race as this year's race looms on the horizon. Obviously I work too much and procrastinate more. It hasn't helped that my obsolete computer sent the first attempt off to the ozone. My appologies for my disorganization.

But since I have this opportunity, let me once again promote the upcoming race. It will be held on October 26th, the evening before the time change, starting about 5:00 p.m. (I'm usually a few minutes late). And by receiving this letter, you are already a survivor, thus you are elligible for the special discount entry fee of $3.00. If I don't immediately recognize you, remind me or show me your name in the results.

Unfortunately the trails are in terrible shape this year as a result of the March rains and the following weed invasion. The city's tractor is apparently broken and hasn't done the annual maintenance run. If it doesn't make it, I'll be out running the trails with a machete or a shovel trying to make it as good as possible. So I'll try to make you feel as welcome back as I can. Hope to see you out again.
